Some FM and AM stations broadcast substations in High Definition. These are listed to the right of the main signal. These additional stations broadcast free of charge.

HD Radio Offers More Channels

- No static – HD Radio signals aren’t subject to atmospheric interference the way standard FM and AM signals are, so background crackle and hiss are eliminated
- Easy to use – It may take a few minutes for the radio to acquire the HD signal if your radio loses a station’s digital signal, and it will automatically switch over to the analog signal broadcast at the same frequency. When this happens, you may notice a slight break in the sound. When the tuner is back in range of the station’s HD signal, it will automatically go back to the digital broadcast. For this reason, it’s smart to save the regular signal as a Favorite
